

ISLAMABAD POLICY RESEARCH INSTITUTE

5th Floor, Evacuee Trust Complex Sir Aga Khan Road, F-5/1, Islamabad
Tel: (92-51) 9211346-9, Fax: 9211350
Website: www.ipripak.org, Email ipripak@ipripak.org

PRESS COVERAGE

IPRI-CCSEZR MoU Signing December 22, 2017

Pak China to enhance research and academic cooperation

December 22, 2017

ISLAMABAD Dec 22, (APP): A Memorandum of Understanding (MoU) was signed today between the Islamabad Policy Research Institute (IPRI), the China Centre for Special Economic Zone Research (CCSEZR) Shenzhen University, and the Belt and Road Research Institute for International Cooperation and Development (BRIICD), Guangdong Province, China. The signing of the MoU will improve research and academic cooperation between the Institutes, as well as promote and intensify friendship and mutual understanding between the people of Pakistan and China in general and the Institutes in particular. IPRI focuses on multidisciplinary research, promotes civil society-government interactions and policy dialogues on strategic and emerging issues as well as events of regional and international importance that have relevance to Pakistan's national interest and policies, while CCSEZR assumes missions of academic exploration and collects historical documents to improve the historical record of SEZs development and Chinese reforms and opening-up.

Speaking on the occasion, Brig. (R) Tirmizi, SI (M) said: "This memorandum is a valid continuation of the relationship that CCSEZR and the IPRI established some time ago. It is an important step forward because we now have a structured framework to further promote our interaction and achieve our common goals through joint activities." He invited the Director of CCSEZR and BRIICD, Prof. Tao Yitao to send scholars to IPRI which supports academic exchange programs between regional and international think tanks. According to Professor Tao Yitao, the Memorandum will enable the institutes to deepen cooperation on issues of common interest and improve opportunities for exchange of ideas. She shared that CCSEZR encourages overseas scholars to carry out academic research and encouraged scholars to share and publish their work with the Institute. “We explore patterns of development from general poverty to common prosperity. With influential studies on special economic zones, the Institute’s work demonstrates the theoretical implications and realistic significance of China’s road,” she remarked.

As well as sharing expertise, both organizations hope to work together on the promotion and exchange of information and invitations to important meetings, symposia and conferences. The signing ceremony was witnessed by IPRI scholars and members of the Chinese delegation including William Yun, Executive Editor, Journal of Belt and Road Studies; Colin Jeung, Secretary BRRICD, and members of the Shanxi Construction Engineering Company, and media representatives. Participants also discussed the China-Pakistan Economic Corridor (CPEC) and pointed out that while CPEC is presented primarily as an economic and developmental initiative with mutual benefits for the countries involved, it is also socially and culturally significant. It was agreed that trust and mutual respect is the key to collaboration. APP Hamza

IPRI signs MoU to strengthen research, academic cooperation

Staff Report

DECEMBER 23, 2017

ISLAMABAD: The Islamabad Policy Research Institute (IPRI) on Friday signed a Memorandum of Understanding (MoU) with the China Centre for Special Economic Zone Research (CCSEZR), Shenzhen University, and the Belt and Road Research Institute for International Cooperation and Development (BRIICD), Guangdong Province, China, to improve research and academic cooperation. The MoU will help promote and intensify friendship and mutual understanding between the people of Pakistan and China in general and the institutes in particular, according to a statement issued by the organization. IPRI focuses on multidisciplinary research, promotes civil society-government interactions and policy dialogues on strategic and emerging issues as well as events of regional and international importance that have relevance to Pakistan's national interest and policies. The CCSEZR assumes missions of academic exploration and collects historical documents to improve the historical record of SEZs development and Chinese reforms and opening-up. Speaking on the occasion, Brig (r) Tirmizi said, "This memorandum is a continuation of the relationship that CCSEZR and the IPRI established some time ago. It is an important step forward because we now have a structured framework to further promote our interaction and achieve our common goals through joint activities." He invited the Director of CCSEZR and BRIICD Prof Tao Yitao to send scholars to IPRI which supports academic exchange programs between regional and international think tanks. According to Professor Tao Yitao, the memorandum will enable the institutes to deepen cooperation on issues of common interest and improve opportunities for exchange of ideas. She said that CCSEZR encourages overseas scholars to carry out academic research and encourages scholars to share and publish their work with the institute.

Published in Daily Times, December 23rd 2017.

IPRI, CCSEZR sign MOU to improve research, academic cooperation

DECEMBER 22, 2017

ISLAMABAD: A Memorandum of Understanding (MoU) was signed between the Islamabad Policy Research Institute (IPRI), the China Centre for Special Economic Zone Research (CCSEZR) Shenzhen University and the Belt and Road Research Institute for International Cooperation and Development (BRRICD), Guangdong Province, here on Friday.

The signing of the MoU will improve research and academic cooperation between the institutes and promote friendship and mutual understanding between the people of Pakistan and China in general and the institutes in particular.

The IPRI focuses on multidisciplinary research, promoting civil society-government interactions and policy dialogues on strategic and emerging issues, as well as, events of regional and international importance that have relevance to Pakistan's national interest and policies, while the CCSEZR assumes missions of academic exploration and collects historical documents to improve the historical record of SEZs development and Chinese reforms.

Speaking on the occasion, Brig (R) Tirmizi said: “This memorandum is a valid continuation of the relationship that CCSEZR and the IPRI established some time ago. It is an important step forward because we now have a structured framework to promote our interaction and achieve common goals through joint activities.” He invited the CCSEZR and BRRICD Director Professor Tao Yitao to send scholars to IPRI which supports academic exchange programmes between regional and international think tanks.

Professor Tao Yitao said that the CCSEZR encourages overseas scholars to carry out academic research and encouraged them to share and publish their work with the institute. “We explore patterns of development from general poverty to common prosperity. With influential studies on special economic zones, the institute’s work demonstrates the theoretical implications and realistic significance of China’s road,” she remarked.

The signing ceremony was witnessed by IPRI scholars and members of the Chinese delegation including Journal of Belt and Road Studies Executive Editor Mr William Yun, BRRICD Secretary Mr Colin Jeung, members of the Shanxi Construction Engineering Company, and media representatives. Participants also discussed the China-Pakistan Economic Corridor (CPEC) and pointed out that while it is primarily presented as an economic and developmental initiative with mutual benefits for the involved countries, it is also socially and culturally significant. It was agreed that trust and mutual respect is the key to collaboration.

Pakistan OBSERVER

IPRI, CCSEZR sign MoU to improve research, academic cooperation

Staff Reporter

A Memorandum of Understanding (MoU) was signed today between the Islamabad Policy Research Institute (IPRI), the China Centre for Special Economic Zone Research (CCSEZR) Shenzhen University, and the Belt and Road Research Institute for International Cooperation and Development (BRRICD), Guangdong Province, China.

The signing of the MoU will improve research and academic cooperation between the Institutes, as well as promote and intensify friendship and mutual understanding between the people of Pakistan and China in general and the Institutes in particular.

IPRI focuses on multidisciplinary research, promotes civil society-government interactions and policy dialogues on strategic and emerging issues as well as events of regional and international importance that have relevance to Pakistan's national interest and policies, while CCSEZR assumes missions of academic exploration and collects historical documents to improve the historical record of SEZs development and Chinese reforms and opening-up. Speaking on the occasion, Brig. (R) Tirmizi, SI (M) said: "This memorandum is a valid continuation of the relationship that CCSEZR and the IPRI established some time ago. It is an important step forward because we now have a structured framework to further promote our interaction and achieve our common goals through joint activities." He invited the Director of CCSEZR and BRRICD, Prof. Tao Yitao to send scholars to IPRI which supports academic exchange programs between regional and international think tanks. According to Professor Tao Yitao, the Memorandum will enable the institutes to deepen cooperation on issues of common interest and improve opportunities for exchange of ideas. She shared that CCSEZR encourages overseas scholars to carry out academic research and encouraged scholars to share and publish their work with the Institute. "We explore patterns of development from general poverty to common prosperity. With influential studies on special economic zones, the Institute's work demonstrates the theoretical implications and realistic significance of China's road," she remarked. As well as sharing expertise, both organizations hope to work together on the promotion and exchange of information and invitations to important meetings, symposia and conferences.

Parliament Times

IPRI-CCSEZR MoU to enhance bilateral research & academic cooperation

Islamabad: (Parliament Times) A Memorandum of Understanding (MoU) was signed today between the Islamabad Policy Research Institute (IPRI), the China Centre for Special Economic Zone Research (CCSEZR) Shenzhen University, and the Belt and Road Research Institute for International Cooperation and Development (BRIICD), Guangdong Province, China.

The signing of the MoU will improve research and academic cooperation between the Institutes, as well as promote and intensify friendship and mutual understanding between the people of Pakistan and China in general and the Institutes in particular. IPRI focuses on multidisciplinary research, promotes civil society-government interactions and policy dialogues on strategic and emerging issues as well as events of regional and international importance that have relevance to Pakistan's national interest and policies, while CCSEZR assumes missions of academic exploration and collects historical documents to improve the historical record of SEZs development and Chinese reforms and opening-up.

Speaking on the occasion, Brig. (R) Tirmizi, SI (M) said: "This memorandum is a valid continuation of the relationship that CCSEZR and the IPRI established some time ago. It is an important step forward because we now have a structured framework to further promote our interaction and achieve our common goals through joint activities." He invited the Director of CCSEZR and BRIICD, Prof. Tao Yitao to send scholars to IPRI which supports academic exchange programs between regional and international think tanks. According to Professor Tao Yitao, the Memorandum will enable the institutes to deepen cooperation on issues of common interest and improve opportunities for exchange of ideas. She shared that CCSEZR encourages overseas scholars to carry out academic research and encouraged scholars to share and publish their work with the Institute. "We explore patterns of development from general poverty to common prosperity. With influential studies on special economic zones, the Institute's work demonstrates the theoretical implications and realistic significance of China's road," she remarked.

As well as sharing expertise, both organizations hope to work together on the promotion and exchange of information and invitations to important meetings, symposia and conferences. The signing ceremony was witnessed by IPRI scholars and members of the Chinese delegation including Mr William Yun, Executive Editor, Journal of Belt and Road Studies; Mr Colin Jeung, Secretary BRRICD, and members of the Shanxi Construction Engineering Company, and media representatives. Participants also discussed the China-Pakistan Economic Corridor (CPEC) and pointed out that while CPEC is presented primarily as an economic and developmental initiative with mutual benefits for the countries involved, it is also socially and culturally significant. It was agreed that trust and mutual respect is the key to collaboration.

PAKISTAN
— POINT —

IPRI, CCSEZR Sign MOU to Improve Research, Academic Cooperation

Talha Hussain

A Memorandum of Understanding (MoU) on Friday signed between the Islamabad Policy Research Institute (IPRI), the China Centre for Special Economic Zone Research (CCSEZR) Shenzhen University

ISLAMABAD, (Pakistan Point News - 22nd Dec, 2017):A Memorandum of Understanding (MoU) on Friday signed between the Islamabad Policy Research Institute (IPRI), the China Centre for Special Economic Zone Research (CCSEZR) Shenzhen University and the Belt and Road Research Institute for International Cooperation and Development (BRRICD), Guangdong Province, China.. The signing of the MoU will improve research and academic cooperation between the Institutes, as well as promote and intensify friendship and mutual understanding between the people of Pakistan and China in general and the Institutes in particular.

IPRI focuses on multidisciplinary research, promotes civil society-government interactions and policy dialogues on strategic and emerging issues as well as events of regional and international importance that have relevance to Pakistan's national interest and policies, while CCSEZR assumes missions of academic exploration and collects historical documents to improve the historical record of SEZs development and Chinese reforms and opening-up.

Speaking on the occasion, Brig. (R) Tirmizi, SI (M) said: This memorandum is a valid continuation of the relationship that CCSEZR and the IPRI established some time ago. It is an important step forward because we now have a structured framework to further promote our interaction and achieve our common goals through joint activities. He invited the Director of CCSEZR and BRRICD, Prof. Tao Yitao to send scholars to IPRI which supports academic exchange programs between regional and international think tanks.

According to Professor Tao Yitao, the Memorandum will enable the institutes to deepen cooperation on issues of common interest and improve opportunities for exchange of ideas. She shared that CCSEZR encourages overseas scholars to carry out academic research and encouraged scholars to share and publish their work with the Institute. We explore patterns of development from general poverty to common prosperity. With influential studies on special economic zones, the Institute's work demonstrates the theoretical implications and realistic significance of China's road, she remarked.

Sharing expertise, both the organizations hope to work together on the promotion and exchange of information and invitations to important meetings, symposia and conferences. The signing ceremony was witnessed by IPRI scholars and members of the Chinese delegation including Mr William Yun, Executive Editor, Journal of Belt and Road Studies; Mr Colin Jeung, Secretary BRRICD, and members of the Shanxi Construction Engineering Company, and media representatives. Participants also discussed the China-Pakistan Economic Corridor (CPEC) and pointed out that while CPEC is presented primarily as an economic and developmental initiative with mutual benefits for the countries involved, it is also socially and culturally significant. It was agreed that trust and mutual respect is the key to collaboration.

IPRI, Chinese Institute sign MoU to enhance mutual cooperation

DNA News | December 22, 2017

ISLAMABAD, DEC 22: Brig. (R) Tirmizi, Islamabad Policy Research Institute and Director of China Centre for Special Economic Zone Research, Tao Yitao and others pose for a group

ISLAMABAD, DEC 22 (DNA)-A Memorandum of Understanding (MoU) was signed on Friday between the Islamabad Policy Research Institute (IPRI), the China Centre for Special Economic Zone Research (CCSEZR) Shenzhen University, and the Belt and Road Research Institute for International Cooperation and Development (BRIICD), Guangdong Province, China.

The signing of the MoU will improve research and academic cooperation between the Institutes, as well as promote and intensify friendship and mutual understanding between the people of Pakistan and China in general and the Institutes in particular.

IPRI focuses on multidisciplinary research, promotes civil society-government interactions and policy dialogues on strategic and emerging issues as well as events of regional and international importance that have relevance to Pakistan's national interest and policies, while CCSEZR assumes missions of academic exploration and collects historical documents to improve the historical record of SEZs development and Chinese reforms and opening-up.

Speaking on the occasion, Brig. (R) Tirmizi, SI(M) said: "This memorandum is a valid continuation of the relationship that CCSEZR and the IPRI established some time ago.

It is an important step forward because we now have a structured framework to further promote our interaction and achieve our common goals through joint activities.”

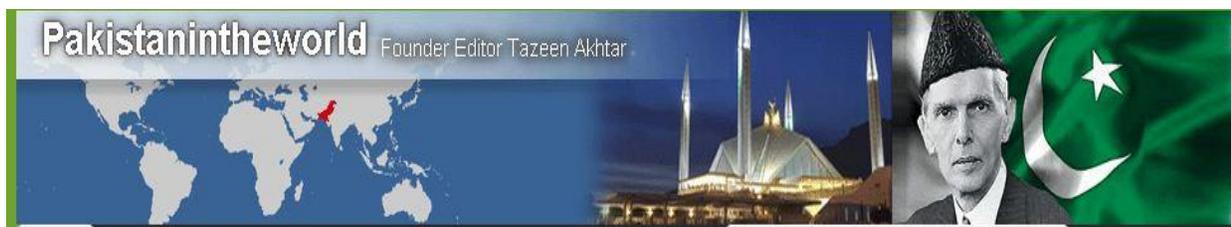

He invited the Director of CCSEZR and BRRICD, Prof. Tao Yitao to send scholars to IPRI which supports academic exchange programs between regional and international think tanks. According to Professor TaoYitao, the Memorandum will enable the institutes to deepen cooperation on issues of common interest and improve opportunities for exchange of ideas.

She shared that CCSEZR encourages overseas scholars to carry out academic research and encouraged scholars to share and publish their work with the Institute. “We explore patterns of development from general poverty to common prosperity. With influential studies on special economic zones, the Institute’s work demonstrates the theoretical implications and realistic significance of China’s road,” she remarked.

As well as sharing expertise, both organizations hope to work together on the promotion and exchange of information and invitations to important meetings, symposia and conferences.

The signing ceremony was witnessed by IPRI scholars and members of the Chinese delegation including Mr William Yun, Executive Editor, Journal of Belt and Road Studies; Mr Colin Jeung, Secretary BRRICD, and members of the Shanxi Construction Engineering Company, and media representatives.

Participants also discussed the China-Pakistan Economic Corridor (CPEC) and pointed out that while CPEC is presented primarily as an economic and developmental initiative with mutual benefits for the countries involved, it is also socially and culturally significant. It was agreed that trust and mutual respect is the key to collaboration. DNA

China Centre for Special Economic Zone Research (CCSEZR) Shenzhen University Signs MoU with I.P.R.I Pakistan

Founder Editor Tazeen Akhtar..

Islamabad(Staff Reporter)A Memorandum of Understanding (MoU) was signed between the Islamabad Policy Research Institute (IPRI), the China Centre for Special Economic Zone Research (CCSEZR) Shenzhen University, and the Belt and Road Research Institute for International Cooperation and Development (BRIICD), Guangdong Province, China.

The signing of the MoU will improve research and academic cooperation between the Institutes, as well as promote and intensify friendship and mutual understanding between the people of Pakistan and China in general and the Institutes in particular. IPRI focuses on multidisciplinary research, promotes civil society-government interactions and policy dialogues on strategic and emerging issues as well as events of regional and international importance that have relevance to Pakistan's national interest and policies, while CCSEZR assumes missions of academic exploration and collects historical documents to improve the historical record of SEZs development and Chinese reforms and opening-up.

Speaking on the occasion, Brig. (R) Tirmizi, SI (M) said: "This memorandum is a valid continuation of the relationship that CCSEZR and the IPRI established some time ago. It is an important step forward because we now have a structured framework to further promote our interaction and achieve our common goals through joint activities." He invited the Director of CCSEZR and BRIICD, Prof. Tao Yitao to send scholars to IPRI which supports academic exchange programs between regional and international think tanks. According to Professor Tao Yitao, the Memorandum will enable the institutes to deepen cooperation on issues of common interest and improve opportunities for exchange of ideas. She shared that CCSEZR encourages overseas scholars to carry out academic research and encouraged scholars to share and publish their work with the Institute. "We explore patterns of development from general poverty to common prosperity. With influential studies on special economic zones, the Institute's work demonstrates the theoretical implications and realistic significance of China's road," she remarked.

As well as sharing expertise, both organizations hope to work together on the promotion and exchange of information and invitations to important meetings, symposia and conferences. The signing ceremony was witnessed by IPRI scholars and members of the Chinese delegation including Mr William Yun, Executive Editor, Journal of Belt and Road Studies; Mr Colin Jeung, Secretary BRRICD, and members of the Shanxi Construction Engineering Company, and media representatives. Participants also discussed the China-Pakistan Economic Corridor (CPEC) and pointed out that while CPEC is presented primarily as an economic and developmental initiative with mutual benefits for the countries involved, it is also socially and culturally significant. It was agreed that trust and mutual respect is the key to collaboration. 22 Dec 2017

Saturday December 23, 2017

Brig (R) Tirmizi Isamabeel, Policy Research Institute and Director of China Centre for Special Economic Zone Research Tao Yitao and others after signing MoU, on Friday.

IPRI, CCSEZR sign MoU to improve research, academic cooperation

STAFF REPORTER

A Memorandum of Understanding (MoU) was signed today between the Islamabad Policy Research Institute (IPRI), the China Centre for Special Economic Zone Research (CCSEZR), Shandong University, and the Belt and Road Research Institute for International Cooperation and Development (BRRIICD), Guangdong Province, China.

The signing of the MoU will improve research and academic cooperation between the institutes, as well as promote and intensify friendship and mutual understanding between the people of Pakistan and China in general and the institutes in particular.

IPRI focuses on multidisciplinary research, promotes civil society-government interactions and policy dialogues on strategic and emerging issues as well as events of regional and international importance that have relevance to Pakistan's national interest and process, while CCSEZR assumes missions of academic exploration and collects historical documents to improve the historical record of SEZs development and Chinese reforms and opening-up.

Speaking on the occasion, Brig (R) Tirmizi, SJ (M) said, "This memorandum is a valid continuation of the relationship that CCSEZR and the IPRI established some time ago. It is an important step forward because we now have a structured framework to further promote our interaction and achieve our common goals through joint activities." He invited the Director of CCSEZR and BRRIICD, Prof. Tao Yitao to send scholars to IPRI which supports academic exchange programs between regional and international think tanks. According to Professor Tao Yitao, the Memorandum will enable the institutes to deepen cooperation on issues of common interest and improve opportunities for exchange of ideas.

She shared that CCSEZR encourages overseas scholars to carry out academic research and encouraged scholars to share and publish their work with the institute. "We explore pathways of development for a global poverty to common prosperity. With influential studies on special economic zones, the Institute's work demonstrates the theoretical implications and realistic significance of China's road," she remarked.

As well as sharing expertise, both organisations hope to work together on the promotion and exchange of information and invitations to important meetings, symposia and conferences.

IPRI signs MoU to strengthen research, academic cooperation

ISLAMABAD: The Islamabad Policy Research Institute (IPRI) on Friday signed a Memorandum of Understanding (MoU) with the China Centre for Special Economic Zone Research (CCSEZR), Shenzhen University, and the Belt and Road Research Institute for International Cooperation and Development (BRRICD), Guangdong Province, China, to improve research and academic cooperation. The MoU will help promote and intensify friendship and mutual understanding between the people of Pakistan and China in general and the institutes in particular, according to a statement issued by the organization. IPRI focuses on multidisciplinary research, promotes civil society-government interactions and policy dialogues on strategic and emerging issues as well as events of regional and international importance that have relevance to Pakistan's national interest and policies. The CCSEZR assumes missions of academic exploration and collects historical documents to improve the historical record of SEZs development and Chinese reforms and opening-up. Speaking on the occasion, Brig (r) Tirmizi said, "This memorandum is a continuation of the relationship that CCSEZR and the IPRI established some time ago. It is an important step forward because we now have a structured framework to further promote our interaction and achieve our common goals through joint activities." He invited the Director of CCSEZR and BRRICD Prof Tao Yitao to send scholars to IPRI which supports academic exchange programs between regional and international think tanks. According to Professor Tao Yitao, the memorandum will enable the institutes to deepen cooperation on issues of common interest and improve opportunities for exchange of ideas. She said that CCSEZR encourages overseas scholars to carry out academic research and encourages scholars to share and publish their work with the institute. "We explore patterns of development from general poverty to common prosperity. With influential studies on special economic zones, the institute's work demonstrates the theoretical implications and realistic significance of China's road to development," she said. The signing ceremony was witnessed by IPRI scholars and members of the Chinese delegation including William Yun, Executive Editor of Journal of Belt and Road Studies; Colin Jeung, Secretary of BRRICD, and members of the Shanxi Construction Engineering Company. The participants also discussed the China-Pakistan Economic Corridor (CPEC) and pointed out that while CPEC was presented primarily as an economic and developmental initiative with mutual benefits for the countries involved, it is also socially and culturally significant. STAFF REPORT